- create a greater understanding of how experiences and views of children are evident and inform the development of sustainable support and preventative services for children and young people.
- look at the processes of how early indications of neglect are recognized and proactive intervention by all agencies.
- consider how Disguised Compliance by families is recognized by professionals and intervention is improved to ensure robust 'checking' of engagement with services.
- understand how the robust use of good chronological information and evidenced based intervention plans are put in place, to avoid further harm.
